Overview

As the Director of Information Technology, Lenny Sanchez oversees Bernkopf Goodman's information technology (IT) infrastructure, computer systems/applications, information security, and data/telecommunications to minimize service interruptions and improve all firm communications, process improvements, and digital security.

Lenny regularly assesses and recommends new technology solutions to improve firm efficiencies and help attorneys provide problem-solving solutions for clients. He is also responsible for tech support for the firm's user-facing technology products.

Lenny has held various leadership positions in his more than 20 years of experience, including managing project management, data center operations, network operations and security, global IT services, and application development.
